

Wanted: Front-End Developer

You want

- A playground for your design skills and coding enthusiasm
- To build a real product that people all over the continent will be using
- To join a team that favors a round of table soccer and a beer at work over suits and hierarchy

You have

- Studied design, computer science (or are in the process of it) or a keen personal interest in web development
- Already some first-hand experience of building a website
- Been bothered by the little not-quite-so-perfect-things on our website
- Some big fans in the teams you worked with before
- An independent and driven work style

At Mixtable you will

- Help implement all the new features we dream up together
- Draw up fancy new web ideas
- Write the code that makes everything look cool
- Spend so many nights out that you forget whether you are actually working or just having fun
- Be part of a very exciting phase in a young enterprise – ready to conquer Europe

Mixtable matches two groups of friends – 3 girls, 3 guys– and brings them together for fun nights out. Mixtable is a young Munich-based business with support from Harvard University and the Strascheg Center for Entrepreneurship.

If this sounds all just a tiny bit like you, send us an e-mail now to jobs@mixtable.com with your key information (no need for long essays – we like those too, just not during the week). Or just give us a ring anytime if you want to find out more (+49 89 9545 7015 0).

More information is available on our website www.mixtable.com.
